

Charges for Non-NHS Work

Doctors are often required to write reports or provide certification to organisations and patients that fall outside the agreed and negotiated fees for the NHS. In these circumstances they are entitled to make a reasonable charge for providing them. It is up to the individual practice to decide how much to charge, although the British Medical Association (BMA) advises what fee should be charged.

When a doctor signs a certificate or completes a report, they need to check the patient's entire medical record to ensure they are providing accurate information. Not all documents need a signature by a doctor. For example, you could ask another person in a position of trust who may be willing to sign a passport application free of charge (i.e. teacher, accountant, priest etc.).

We aim to turn around requests in 15 working days.
